

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Black Duck, Minn.—"About a year ago I wrote you that I was sick and could not do any of my housework. My sickness was called Retroflexion. When I would sit down I felt as if I could not get up. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and did just as you told me and now I am perfectly cured, and have a big baby boy."

Mrs. ANNA ANDERSON, Box 19, Black Duck, Minn.

Consider This Advice.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Old Oaken Bucket.—Do you remember where you drank water? Patient (an actor)—Oh, yes! It was back on the dear old farm—twenty years ago!—Puck.

The Most Noticeable Change.—"So you have lived in Europe for 25 years? That's a long time for a man to be away from his own country." "Yes, it is, and I'm mighty glad to be home again." "I suppose you notice a great many changes?" "Yes, many."

"What, if I may ask, is the greatest change that has come to your notice?" "The greatest change, it seems to me, is to be found in the fact that the vice-president of the United States succeeds in getting his name in the paper nearly as often as he might if he were a baseball player or a promising lightweight prizefighter."

WISE WORDS.

A Physician on Food.

A physician, of Portland, Oregon, has views about food. He says: "I have always believed that the duty of the physician does not cease with treating the sick, but that we owe it to humanity to teach them how to protect their health, especially by hygienic and dietetic laws."

"With such a feeling as to my duty I take great pleasure in saying to the public that in my own experience and also from personal observation I have found no food equal to Grape-Nuts, and that I find there is almost no limit to the great benefits this food will bring when used in all cases of sickness and convalescence."

"It is my experience that no physical condition forbids the use of Grape-Nuts. To persons in health there is nothing so nourishing and acceptable to the stomach, especially at breakfast, to start the machinery of the human system on the day's work."

"In cases of indigestion I know that a complete breakfast can be made of Grape-Nuts and cream and I think it is not advisable to overload the stomach at the morning meal. I also know the great value of Grape-Nuts when the stomach is too weak to digest other food."

"This is written after an experience of more than 20 years, treating all manner of chronic and acute diseases, and the letter is written voluntarily on my part without any request for it."

LA FOLLETTE HEARS OF DOLLIVER'S DEATH

Shock Causes Set Back in Condition of Statesman From Wisconsin.

Rochester, Minn., Oct. 20.—The news of the sudden death of Senator Dolliver, of Iowa, has caused a slight setback in the condition of Senator Robert La Follette, who is recuperating from an operation for appendicitis at St. Mary's hospital.

The close relationship between the Iowa and Wisconsin senators in their careers at Washington made the news of the Iowa's death a severe shock and caused great sorrow to La Follette and it seemed to cause him anxiety.

While it is impossible to get a statement from him, his condition is said to be by no means serious and it is thought the slight turn for the worse will be overcome shortly.

It is still expected that the senator will leave the hospital some day this week.

MONTANA GIRL IS MATCH FOR THIEF IN GOTHAM ROAD

Compels Highwayman to Put New Tire on Her Auto When He Had Punctured the Old One.

New York, Oct. 17.—It was dark and cold on the high road between Rayport and Sayville, L. I., early in the morning when an automobile in which Miss Edythie Craine, just recovered from an illness, her niece, Miss Janice Craine, who with her aunt lives in Richmond Hill, Mrs. Elizabeth Jensen, of Jersey City, and her daughter, Geraldine, D. E. Hamilton, of Manhattan, owner of the auto, and a chauffeur came to a sudden stop.

"What's the matter?" Miss Edythie Craine asked.

"Front wheel is flat," said Hamilton, and his chauffeur found nails sticking to his wheel and the road for 50 feet was strewn with sharp wire nails.

"I did that," said a voice and a large man, wearing a black cloth over the lower part of his face, stepped from the bushes, covering the party with a revolver.

"I want your valuables, quick. If you don't fork over I'll shoot."

As Hamilton and the chauffeur were backed up against the auto a second masked man appeared.

Weapon Is Displayed.

"Dismount and fork over your rings," he said to the women. "I haven't any gun, but my pard will attend to the slow ones."

Miss Edythie Craine was the farthest from the footpad. She is a western woman, a graduate of the University of Montana, and ready to take a sporting chance, in spite of the fact that she edits a woman's page of a local newspaper.

As she saw Mrs. Jerrold and her daughter dismount in turn and surrender their purses and rings she remembered that there was a revolver in the pocket of Hamilton's overcoat, lying across the back of the front seat. Her niece stumbled in getting out of the car, distracting the attention of the masked man. She thrust her hand into the pocket of the coat, seized the revolver and placed it behind her back.

"It's your turn," said the masked man to Miss Craine, "now come out of there."

"What valuables have you?" he asked, letting his revolver hand fall so that his pistol pointed to the ground.

Make Him Drop Gun.

"This," said Miss Craine, pointing Hamilton's revolver at his breast. "Drop your gun"—western speech came back to her despite that woman's page—"and don't either of you move. I've got you covered."

The man dropped his gun and the chauffeur picked it up.

"Now restore everything you have taken," she ordered.

Then restitution was made.

"Now put on a new tire for me," she ordered.

With the best will and the greatest zeal the chauffeur tried to obey, but it was apparent that they did not know the tire from the detachable rims. So Miss Craine backed them off to the side of the road and guarded them while Hamilton and the chauffeur set the new tire.

This done, every one except the two footpads got into the car, Miss Craine still carrying the two revolvers.

Lets Them Depart.

"I've been ill," she said to the two, "and I'm in a hurry to get home. If it was not for that I'd carry you along in the machine with us and you would go to jail. As it is, I will let you go. I'll count slowly up to 10 and then if either of you are around I'll shoot."

She began to count. When she had reached five there was only the sound of two feet striking at frequent and regular intervals the road to Bayport. Nevertheless the young woman continued counting up to 10. Then she discharged each of the revolvers into the retreat.

"Mustn't waste cartridges; may need them before we get home," she said. But they didn't need them and they reached Richmond Hill and home safely.

"Yes, I was a little frightened at first," Miss Craine said, when she was in the security of Richmond Hill. "But after I got that gun in my hands the days on the ranch came back and I didn't care. I only wanted to carry my point and I think I did."

Wrong Guess.

It was exhibition day at No. 3, and as the parents of Jack Grady, the dullest pupil, were listening hopefully, the teacher tried her best to help the boy. "How did Charles I. of England die?" she asked, assigning the easiest question on her list to Jack. As he looked at her, with no indication of a coming answer, the teacher put her hand up to her neck. Jack saw the movement and understood its meaning; she happened to meet her first landlady of cholera," he announced briskly.—Youth's Companion.

NEED MONEY FOR GOOD WORK

Plans of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

What "A Million for Tuberculosis from Red Cross Seals" will do in providing some of the 275,000 beds needed at once in the United States for consumptives, is explained in a recent bulletin of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. There is just about one bed for every ten indigent consumptives, and if all tuberculosis persons in the country are counted, both rich and poor, hardly one for every 25 or 30. If sufficient hospital accommodations are provided only for those who are too poor to pay the full price for their treatment fully 275,000 more beds in special institutions for tuberculosis will be needed at once. The immense outlay necessary to provide and maintain so many beds in hospitals, makes it imperative, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis declares, that such institutions be erected from public money, either municipal, county or state. In order to get appropriations for public hospitals for tuberculosis, agitation is necessary, and in order to create a campaign of agitation, organization is demanded. But in order that an organization may carry on an effective campaign, funds are needed.

These funds it is proposed to secure in as many communities as possible from the sale of Red Cross seals.
